Unique Selling Points

The game's unique selling point is the uncanny story mixed with simple, challenging mini games.

Visual and Audio Style

The game will be very icon focused, and use entirely stock images for world-building. The icons will denote anything interactable.

Game World Fiction

As a recent computer science graduate, you face the unbeatable wall that is finding a programming job in the current market. To make hands meat you take a job at a sketchy fast food restaurant. As the owner imposes crazier quotas on you, you're forced to work outside of morality and legality to succeed. Try to survive a week running this food operation from hell.

Platform, Technology, and Scope

The game will be built on Godot, built entirely in 2D with UI elements overlaid on a background image. The game will have 3 mini games to start. 2 variants of each game. The story has 7 days, each mini game represents a part of the day

Core Loops

Mini game 1 -> Mini game 2 -> Mini game 3
Mini Game 1: Picking up stuff from aisle shelves during a set time (pick up as many ingredients as you can)
Mini Game 2: Make food with ingredients falling from sky (make as many as possible)
Mini Game 3: Complete as many transactions as you can in the time allotted

Objectives and Progression

- Gain money to meet a quota
- Quota increases each day
- More money = higher score
- Score contributes to store to buy cosmetics
- Set start and end, but replayable.
- In-game achievements (optional)
- Left-handed mode (harder)

Interactivity

The player interacts with the world via UI elements. The player will drag and drop elements, move icons around the screen, and press buttons.

Interpretation of the theme

The theme is “Death is an opportunity”. We chose to interpret it as a capitalist opportunity. The deaths of innocents create opportunities for $$$$$$$.
